

Coverage Intern, APAC

Riskline is recruiting a three-month remote-based unpaid Coverage Intern to perform coverage and analysis of global incidents and events. Candidates must have excellent analytical, writing and editing skills and be able to work well under pressure and with little direct supervision. Regional language skills are highly preferred.

Desired Skills & Experience:

The successful candidate will possess a strong academic background and/or professional experience. The role requires the ability to think critically and write to a very high standard in British English under tight deadlines. The candidate will be able to analyse and interpret complex situations to provide clear and concise information. The position requires the candidate to manage time effectively, work under pressure and accept peer review. The ideal candidate will be a student currently pursuing a Master's degree programme.

Knowledge & Experience:

Required:

Be based in Asia-Pacific (eg. Singapore, Hong Kong, Taiwan, Australia, New Zealand, etc.) and not requiring visa sponsorship

Degree in International Relations, Political Science, Security Studies or Journalism

Familiarity and understanding of political and/or security issues of a specific sub-region within APAC.

Preferred:

Experience living, working and/or travelling extensively in that region

Qualifications & Skills:

Required:

Academic or professional writing experience in British (UK) English

Ability to write clearly, concisely and confidently to tight deadlines

Ability to identify and interpret events and developments of potential interest or concern to clients

Preferred:

Working knowledge of regional language(s)

Applications should be forwarded to Riskline's Operations Manager for Eurasia, Emanuele Scansani (ems@riskline.com) with a CV and a short writing sample.
